His Reference.

In the course of a conversation between two men at the club last night one of them jokingly remarked that a man with a "check" could get anything he desired, and he backed up his statement with the following story:

One of his friends, a merchant, had advertised for a porter. A big, burly Irishman applied for the job. After looking him over the merchant was satisfied with his appearance; the only objection was the question of references, and the Irishman did not seem to have a very good one. "Can you get no better reference than this?" asked the merchant. "O yes, Sir; I kin git ye the very best kind of a man, if that's all ye want, Sir; and I don't have to go far for it, either. Me father and me mother, Sir, live down the strait, and they've known me all me life—

And he landed the job.

She'd Rather Loop the Loop.

"My daughter got me to loop-the-loop at the park last summer—once," said the woman with the vinegar-vision as she stepped from the main elevator of a big office building, according to the Kansas City Journal, "but that's a baby's swing to this when it comes to mixing one's vital organs."

"The trouble is that the elevator boy changes his mind oftener than a woman. I never came down yet that he didn't decide on a different speed in transit. When he did that quick stop at the fourth floor just now I simply telescoped inside. My heart's in my mouth yet, and I can't locate my stomach. No; no luncheon for me until I get over this scrambled feeling."

Value of Good Humor.

A thing always to be cultivated is good humor. No prop to trouble has yet been discovered the equal in strength of good nature. It is just as much an obligation of men to fight against depression as it is to fight against oppression, and yet men yield readily to depression and say they will die before they will submit to oppression. They begin at the wrong place with their heroes. Good humor is the safety valve. It provides a way for unnecessary and harmful steam, which, if confined, may result in a ruinous explosion. Good humor dwells in the house of comfort; it waters the plants, feeds the canary, draws the curtains to admit the sunlight and at evening time it lights the lamp.—Stour City Journal.

Prominent in Many Lines.

Capt. George Washington Baird, superintendent of the state, war and navy building, Washington, just placed on the retired list, aside from his excellent war record, is a scientist, writer and inventor of some pretensions.

Dog's Birth Certificate.

In support of her contention that an unlicensed dog, on account of which she had been summoned, was not six months old, a woman in East Grinstead, England, produced in court the dog's birth certificate, signed by a veterinary surgeon.

Do Not Heed Plea.

A new soprano was needed to fill a vacancy in a New York church choir, and there were many applicants. Each chose her own music, the idea being to allow the candidates to show off to the best advantage. One young woman sang a "dece" which began, "Turn me not away." She was, notwithstanding.

Keep a few bottles of Pabst Blue Ribbon Beer in the icebox, ready to serve a meal or between meals. It is the most refreshing of all summer drinks.

Pabst Blue Ribbon
The Beer of Quality

It is both a food and a drink. It nourishes, sustains and refreshes. It aids digestion and promotes health. It is always an act of courtesy to serve Pabst Blue Ribbon.
